The screenshot shows the Gale Primary Sources interface for the American Historical Periodicals from the American Antiquarian Society. The header features the Gale logo and the title. Below the title is a search bar and an "Advanced Search" link. The main content area is divided into two columns. The left column, titled "ABOUT THIS RESOURCE", provides a detailed description of the collection, mentioning its founding in 1812 by Revolutionary War patriot and printer Isaiah Thomas, and its status as the largest and most accessible collection of American periodicals of this period. The right column, titled "PRESENTED IN COLLABORATION WITH", features the logo of the American Antiquarian Society. Below these columns are two sections for search tools: "Topic Finder" and "Term Frequency". The "Topic Finder" section includes a pie chart icon and a description: "Visualize connections between search terms and topics and view relevant articles for those topics." The "Term Frequency" section includes a line graph icon and a description: "Explore the coverage of your search terms, graphed over time and note trends in coverage of multiple topics." Both sections have a "Go to" link.

ABOUT THIS RESOURCE

Founded in 1812 by Revolutionary War patriot and printer Isaiah Thomas, the American Antiquarian Society is both a learned society and a major independent research library. The AAS has been in existence longer than Library of Congress, and unlike Washington-based archives, it survived the British invasion of 1812. It has the single largest collection of American periodicals of this period. The AAS library today houses the largest and most accessible collection of books, pamphlets, broadsides, newspapers, periodicals, music, and graphic arts material printed through 1876 in what is now the United...

EARTHQUAKE IN SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA, OCTOBER 8, 1865—VIEW ON THE CORNER OF BATTERY AND SACRAMENT

EARTHQUAKE IN SAN FRANCISCO.

We illustrate on this page the recent earthquake in San Francisco, the most severe shock of the kind ever known in that city.

The shock occurred at 1.15 p.m., October 8, frightening almost the entire population from their houses into the streets. During half a minute there were two tremendous shocks, which caused the buildings to rock to and fro in a manner altogether alarming. It was on Sunday, and services were just over in the churches; the congregation of the Unitarian church was being dismissed when the shock commenced, and the excitement among the women and children threatened serious consequences. The rush from the Catholic church on Vallejo Street was so great that the doors to the main entrance were carried away, and several persons were injured by being trampled upon. The walls of many buildings were

EARTHQUAKE IN SAN FRANCISCO.

We illustrate on this page the recent earthquake in San Francisco, the most severe shock of the kind ever known in that city.

The shock occurred at 1.15 P.M., October 8, frightening almost the entire population from their homes into the streets. During half a minute there were two tremendous shocks, which caused the buildings to rock to and fro in a manner altogether alarming. It was on Sunday, and services were just over in the churches; the congregation of the Unitarian church was being dismissed when the shock commenced, and the excitement among the women and children threatened serious consequences. The roof from the Catholic church on Vallejo Street was so great that the doors to the main entrance were carried away, and several persons were injured by being trampled upon. The walls of many buildings were cracked in several places, and more or less plastering fell from perhaps half the ceilings in the city. The cornices and fire walls fell from many buildings.

EARTHQUAKE IN SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., OCTOBER 8, 1865.—VIEW ON THE CORNER OF THIRD AND MISSION STREETS. [SKETCHED BY C. L. BOGGER.]

We show in one of our sketches the injury done to a building on Third and Mission streets. Two-thirds of the front fell into the street, and a small section of the side into an adjoining building. The rear wall of the upper story fell out, and through a frame building nearest to it. Another illustration which we give is a view of the two-story brick building on the northwest corner of Sacramento and Battery streets. Here the front of the upper story fell out. The motion of the shock appeared to be from east to west. The tide, as is usual in such cases, rose to an unusual height.

VIRGINIA STATE PENITENTIARY.

On this page we give a sketch, by our Richmond artist, of the Virginia State Penitentiary at Richmond. It has been in existence a good number of years, having been enlarged and devoted to the services of the State, in its present capacity, as far back as 1850. It is capable of accommodating 300 prisoners, and at the time of the occupation of Richmond contained 287 within its gloomy

ABOUT THIS RESOURCE

Founded in 1812 by Revolutionary War patriot and printer Isaiah Thomas, the American Antiquarian Society is both a learned society and a major independent research library. The AAS has been in existence longer than Library of Congress, and unlike Washington-based archives, it survived the British invasion of 1812. It has the single largest collection of American periodicals of this period. The AAS library today houses the largest and most accessible collection of books, pamphlets, broadsides, newspapers, periodicals, music, and graphic arts material printed through 1876 in what is now the United...
